PLACE DEATHS IN PALESTINE QUAKE AT FIVE HUNDRED

Reports Estimate Seven Hundred Houses In Jerusalem District Damaged

PRAYING PRIEST KILLED AS MINARET IS WRECKED

Injured Number About Four Hundred Fifty; People Spend Night In Open

LONDON, July 13. (AP)—The Daily Mail's Haifa, Syria correspondent says that 500 persons were killed in the earthquake in Palestine and Trans-Jordan and that more than 700 homes in Jerusalem and the surrounding district were damaged.

These include a Greek convent. A minaret fell while a priest was reciting prayers, killing him. Damage to Jerusalem is estimated at about $100,000.

Thousands of watermelons rolled from the warehouse at Haifa because of vibrations of the earth, and while people ran for safety, others ran for the melons.

Find Four Hundred Bodies

JERUSALEM, July 13. (Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Bodies of victims of the earthquake in Palestine Monday afternoon have been recovered from the debris in Palestine cities and villages. A list of casualties compiled by the authorities places the number of injured at 450.

No casualties were reported among the Jewish population in the country districts. Thousands of families all over the country spent last night in the open air fearing a repetition of the earthquake. Not a house in Jerusalem of Hebron is without some damage.

Two synagogues, one in Jerusalem and the other in Tiberias, were destroyed. In several Palestinian towns the mosque and the government office buildings were damaged. The house of the British representative at Annam, the capital of Trans-Jordan, was totally destroyed. The church of the Holy Sepulchre as well as the Greek choir chapel and two large domes were damaged.

A message of sympathy was received by acting high commissioner Colonel Symes, from high commissioner Lord Plummer, who is now on vacation in England.

Report U. S. Sends New Mexican Note

MEXICO CITY, July 13. (AP)—Reports have been printed locally that the United States government is preparing to deliver a new note to the Mexican government on the general subject of relations between Mexico and the United States. The United States embassy states it had no knowledge of any foundation of these reports.

The last note which the embassy sent was that requesting, for the fourth time, apprehension and punishment of murderers of Arthur Bremer, an American, who was shot in Mexico City last year.

Wilson arrived here about ten days ago and was occupying a local pulpit.

John D—88 and Happy!

Eighty-eight, and mighty happy in his smiling contemplation of living to be at least 100—that is John D. Rockefeller, Sr., as you see him here. The extraordinary fine photo of one of the world's most famous citizens was made as Rockefeller left the Tarrytown, Baptist Church at Tarrytown, N. Y., the first Sunday after his 83th birthday. He had motored to church from his estate at Pocantico Hills. Straw hat, muffer, well-worn overcoat, sharply creased trousers, and brightly shined shoes marked Rockefeller's appearance. His left hand clutched his spectacles, and twinkling eyes gave expression to the geniality of his lengthening years.

Otis Rogers Goes Back to West For His Health

AUSTIN, July 13. (AP)—Rebecca Bradley Rogers, whose $1,000 bank robbery trial was continued and transferred yesterday from San Marcos to La Grange, was here today with her husband, Otis Rogers, who, enroute from a tubercular sanatorium near San Angelo to the scheduled trial at San Marcos, met her here on her return.

They were to return today on Thursday to San Angelo, near where Rogers, Amarillo attorney, and witness in the robbery case, has been several months under her care.

He will go back to the sanatorium. She will return to work as a stenographer in San Angelo. C. A. Rogers of Wichita Falls, Otis' brother, also was here.

Otis Rogers, who contracted pneumonia in rushing to his young former university student wife's defense last winter, has gained 27 pounds in weight in the last two months, but is still underweight and feeble. He enroute for San Marcos when it seemed as if the case, continued once because of his illness, would go to trial, and arrived last night. Rogers indicated that he will be present when Mrs. Rogers case is called at La Grange in December.

THREE PLEAD GUILTY TO BEATING THEIR BROTHER

HOUSTON, July 13. (AP)—Three brothers Wednesday pleaded guilty to charges of simple assault and were fined $5 each for an attack on a fourth brother on June 19.

The three, A. C., J. P., and Gail Kerr, were indicted for aggravated assault by the grand jury after their brother T. A. Kerr, 45, had told the investigating body that he and a young woman companion had been beaten by his brothers with a quarter inch rope.

After listening to the testimony Judge Wilson reduced the charge from aggravated assault to simple assault and the three brothers entered pleas of guilty and paid their fines.

Kerr told the court that his brothers accused him of not supporting his mother and of owing her $500. He said that since the death of his father several years ago his mother had made her home with him and that as far as he knew he was her sole support.

TRIO ARRAIGNED IN SLAYING CASE

Mrs. Lebecuff, Alleged Lover, And Accused Trapper Plead Not Guilty

FRANKLIN, La., July 13. (AP)—A woman who wept for her children, a physician who spoke cheerily to his friends as he faced arraignment on a murder charge and a trapper who denied knowledge of crime with which he is charged, tonight awaited the trial for alleged murder of James J. Lebecuff, husband of the woman.

The three, Mrs. Ada Lebecuff, Dr. Thomas Dreher, her alleged lover, and James Beadle, were arraigned today and pleaded not guilty to the charges. Motions to postpone the arraignment and set a later date than July 25 for the trial, made by their attorneys were denied.

The meeting in the courtroom was their first since their arrest. The day after the mutilated body was found on the edge of a lake near Morgan City.

Mrs. Lebecuff did not glance toward the 55-year-old physician, whose love affair with her is said to have led to the murder of her husband. The physician smilingly greeted friends and chatted with newspaper men until cautioned by attorneys not to do so.

Beadle faced the charge with downcast countenance. Although he has denied knowledge of the crime, he has told Sheriff Charles Decot, "I guess they'll hang me."

Mrs. Lebecuff, attired in a black dress, appeared downcast and the countenance of the trapper was solemn.

The three defendants were seated in different sections of the courtroom and neither Mrs. Lebecuff nor the physician glanced toward the other.

As they left the court room, however, Dr. Dreher encountered the woman whose love affair with him was alleged to have led to the murder of her husband. Meeting each other for a moment in the corridor of the jail as they passed back to the cell, the physician exchanged a few words with her.

FOKKER BUILDS GIANT BOMBER PLANE FOR U. S.

Dutch Inventor Constructing Huge Monoplane With Wing Spread of Ninety Feet

MOUNTS TWO MACHINE GUNS; BIG CAPACITY

Resembles Type of Commander Byrd's But Carries Only Two Large Motors

TETERBORO, N. J., July 13. (AP)—It was learned here today on reliable authority that Anthony G. Fokker, noted Dutch aeronautical inventor is building a huge monoplane bomber for the United States government at his factory at Hasbrouck Heights.

The plane is to have a wing spread of 90 feet, mount two machine guns and weigh approximately 15,000 pounds when loaded. The load will comprise 2,000 pounds of high explosive.

The plane, in general design and construction, will resemble the America, which Commander Byrd flew to France.

The chief difference in the two will be in the matter of engines. Byrd's plane carried three Wright whirling engines. The bomber now being built will carry two motors, both Pratt-Whitneys.

The unofficial top speed estimated for the plane is estimated at 120 miles an hour. It is the first monoplane bomber ever built in America according to The Associated Press informant.

Work on the plane is being speeded up, the informant said, to permit test flights at Mitchell Field on or before August 1. Lieutenants Eugene Batten and Harry Johnson, United States army, have been selected as test flight pilots. The informant said. After the tests at Mitchell Field, the plane will be taken to McCook Field, Dayton, O., for bombing tests.

Like the Curtiss biplane bomber Condor, given recent tests at Mitchell Field, the Fokker plane will be equipped with standard bomb racks. The test flights, the informant said, will determine whether the government will give a subsequent order for more planes of this type.

BUREAU TO AID IN SUPPLYING LABOR

Fort Worth Director Sends Men To Survey Needs In Cotton Crop Areas

FT. WORTH, July 13. (AP)—The United States Farm Labor Bureau is taking steps to prevent "last year's scramble for cotton pickers" which brought on a labor shortage and caused financial loss to many sections. C. W. Woodman, director of the Fort Worth office, State headquarters of the bureau said here today.

Among steps looking toward the supplying of a steady flow of labor to places needing it which already have been taken is the sending of two representatives to San Antonio to study the labor situation in that section of the State, and to report to Woodman.

The first contingent of 150 cotton pickers was sent from San Antonio Tuesday and will be followed by similar assignments as soon as a demand develops. Woodman said. "We believe that by the last of July cotton picking will be in progress from San Antonio to Corpus Christi and will then gradually spread to all sections," he said.

Closer cooperation between State and Federal labor bureaus will facilitate gatherings of all Texas crops and will eliminate many labor "hazards" which have proven expensive to farmers in the past, Woodman pointed out.

YOUNG SWIMMING TEACHER LONE FINISHER IN RACE

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 13. (AP)—After nearly 19 hours of battling with the chill waters of Lake George, a young swimming instructor of New York, comparatively unknown in aquatic annals, defeated world-renowned swimmers today in the longest race ever staged in fresh water.

It appeared this morning that Edward Keating, 24, whose tireless overland travel brought him ashore here at 4:43 a. m., would be the only one of the 100 swimmers who entered the water at Hazy yesterday to finish the $10,000 classic. He finished the 24 miles in 18 hours, 47 minutes and 18 seconds.

IDENTIFY NEGRO HELD IN DEATH OF JUSTIN MAN

Was Escaped Convict Sent to Penitentiary For Seventy-Five Years

DALLAS, July 13. (AP)—Finger print experts here have identified the negro giving his name as Willie Robinson, held in Dallas county jail and charged in connection with the slaying of J. C. Terrell, Justin farmer, as Jesse Brinkley, who escaped from the Texas prison farm near Houston where he was serving a 15-year sentence on conviction of burglary and assault to murder.

Robinson, or Brinkley, yesterday placed his "mark" on a written confession that he participated in the Terrell slaying, but claimed that a confederate actually did the shooting.

The negro, wounded by the guns of Denton county deputy sheriffs, was captured yesterday at Blue Mound crossing near Haslett. Terrell's body was shot in an attempted resistance to arrest, the officers said.

FT. WORTH, July 13. (AP)—Belief that the negro sought by officers in connection with the Terrell slaying near Justin Sunday has been hiding in Ft. Worth was expressed by County Attorney Elbert Hooper of Denton today.

That the negro still at large fired the shots which caused Terrell's death in the alleged statement in a confession said to have been made by Willie Robinson, alias Jesse Brinkley, negro who was arrested at Blue Mound crossing Tuesday and now is confined in the Dallas county jail.

CINCINNATI, July 13. (AP)—Miami, Fla., was selected as the 1928 meeting place for the Elks national convention, defeating Los Angeles when the second poll was taken today. Miami received 519 votes and Los Angeles 245.

The selection was effected by a combination of the Atlantic City and Miami forces.

CINCINNATI, July 13. "If the members of this order practice what they preach," he said, "we constitute the organized force best prepared to battle against these un-American tendencies."

Mr. Malley endorsed the proposal of an Elks national foundation made by retiring grand exalted ruler Grakelov of Philadelphia, and asked the convention to authorize him to appoint a foundation commission to make a study of its possibilities.

"Our next stop will be at Tulsa, Okla., and we will leave at day-break tomorrow," Miss Logan said. She hopes to be the first of her sex to fly to Hawaii.

AUSTIN, July 13.—Petition of three thousand Lamar county persons seeking pardon for M. E. McCoy, Paris chiropractor serving a 15-day jail sentence for violation of the state medical practice act, was denied today by Gov. Dan Moody. The Governor emphasized that no denial of guilt was made in the petition and also that there was no intimation that the chiropractor would exist from violating the law under which he was convicted in November.

"It appears from the face of the petition," Governor Moody declared, "that the person for whom clemency is asked has violated the law for six years. No suggestion was made that he was not guilty of the charge upon which he was convicted, and the intimation is that if released he would continue his past attitude toward the law under which he was convicted. It is my obligation to uphold the law and it is not for me to pass upon the justice or fairness of statutes, under which men have been convicted. In determining whether or not he should be pardoned."

Upholds Decision Against Issuance Teachage Bonds

AUSTIN, July 13. (AP)—All bond issues by school districts for teachers' homes will be disapproved by the attorney general's department on grounds that such expenditures are unconstitutional, Miss Ethel Hilton, assistant attorney general said today in denying approval of the $1,000 issue of the Center district of Shelby county, the fourth she turned down in the last several days.

This policy will be pursued, she said, unless some district takes a test case to court and establishes the validity of the act of 1923, allowing bond issues for so-called "teachages," which the attorney general's department has held unconstitutional, prior to her appointment. She has been upholding that decision.

Some districts have defended teachage bond issues under the school maintenance provision of the constitution, Miss Hilton said. "It is a matter for the courts to determine, whether construction of teachage is 'maintenance,' she explained. A test case, she said, could get into court by injunction proceedings seeking to compel the attorney general's department to approve a teachage bond issue.

Texas Cotton Reported Fair To Very Good, Though Insects Doing Damage

Rains benefited corn in the Southwest and the Middle Atlantic area. Temperatures during the week in the South were favorable. In the Carolina progress of cotton ranged from fair to good despite considerable wet weather. In the Georgia area, the week was decidedly favorable, except in the central division where many fields are still grassy. In Oklahoma while weevil are increasing the progress and condition of the crop continue fair to excellent. In Texas progress of the crop was fair to very good. Insects, however, are reported increasing with considerable local damage. Favorable reports were received from the far southwestern states.

BRECKENRIDGE HAS DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AND RISING FLOOD

Business Block Burns and Rain-Swollen Creek Threatens Factory Areas

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, July 13. (AP)—Fire and flood struck Breckenridge, early today causing unestimated damage.

Half a business block was destroyed by the fire, of undetermined origin, and damage was estimated at $25,000 while five inches of rain swelled Gonzales creek, overflowing lowlands and washing into homes in lowlying districts. Railroad officials said the road bed north of the city is under water. Flood damage was not known.

A number of homes in the lower parts of the city were washed from their blocks while rescuers aided a number of families to escape with their household goods. Many automobiles which attempted to pass down one of the city's principal streets leading to the business section and paralleling the Rockland highway were stalled when water flooded their motors.

All the railroad yards of the Wichita Falls and southern north of the city in a first section were under water in some places as much as two and three feet.

Fear was expressed that with the continued fall of rain the Gonzales would rise sufficiently to inundate the entire railroad and industrial section dividing traffic east and west between the business district and a larger portion of the residential district.

Woman Freed of Insanity Stigma

FT. WORTH, Texas, July 13. (AP)—The stain of asserted insanity which she had borne for three years and which had injured her in her profession was removed from the name of Miss Kate Agnes Blacklock, a former school teacher by a jury of 12 men in district court here today.

In the trial today which Miss Blacklock had requested in order that she "might not be burdened with the stigma of insanity" if she was not insane, the jury declared that Miss Blacklock was not of unsound mind on July 19, 1924, when she was so adjudged by a jury of six men at a lunacy hearing.

Although the motive for the hearing in 1924 was not disclosed in Miss Blacklock's testimony, her petition, charged "fraud," she said she was arrested at her home, taken to the court house immediately and tried, was allowed no witnesses and did not hear testimony of all witnesses against her.

After confinement in a hospital for seven weeks in a San Antonio asylum, she was admitted to a furlough and then was discharged, she said.

A report of the probate court showed that a small estate of Miss Blacklock had been consumed in expenses incident to guardianship in the lunacy case.

ESTIMATE OF TEXAS WHEAT YIELD GIVEN

DALLAS, July 13. (AP)—Texas will produce more than 15,000,000 bushels of wheat this season and the Oklahoma turnout will be around 45,000,000 bushels, R. C. Andrews of Dallas, district manager of the American Railway Association, estimates.

At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 31,212,944 bushels of wheat had been received at Galveston and 47,353,135 bushels had been exported, as compared to the 35,429,909 bushels received and 33,628,821 bushels exported during 1924, last heavy production year, Mr. Andrews' report showed.

One million and sixty thousand bushels of wheat still are in the elevators there.

FOURTH FLOGGING REPORTED DURING PROBE OF OTHERS

Brutal Treatment of Negro Land Owner Described To Alabama Officers

TWO WOMEN AND THREE MEN TO FACE CHARGES

Woman Is One of Victims In Series of Attacks During Past Three Weeks

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 13. (AP)—While state investigators were procuring evidence against masked men who have perpetrated the three brutal floggings in Alabama within the last two weeks, evidence was given county authorities here today that Arthur Hitt, a negro land owner, was flogged unmercifully several days ago and frightened into disposing of several acres of valuable land for $300.

After refusing an offer to buy the land, Hitt told Sheriff Hartsfield that a band of masked men roused him from bed, took him seven miles from his home, strapped him to a tree and flogged him with straps and limbs from trees. Three days later he signed away his property.

Scars and ugly welts on the negro's back and a large laceration on his forehead bear out his story, according to the sheriff.

Sheriff Hartsfield believes the property which is valued conservatively at $6,000 may be regained for the negro because of the manner in which the deed is alleged to have been obtained. The deed also is expected to be a clue to the identity of the floggers.

The sheriff characterized the case as "the very worst of all the flogging cases" that have been brought to his attention, and Solicitor Davis has ordered Hitt brought before the Jefferson county grand jury immediately.

FLORENCE, Ala., July 13. (AP)—Warrants were sworn out here today for two women and three men charging complicity in the flogging of Mrs. Bertha E. Slay, several days ago.

Those charged in the warrants were Mr. and Mrs. Allen Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lindsay and Charles Lindsay.

The warrants were made returnable August 1.

Mrs. Slay was taken from her home, tied to a barrel and whipped "with an automobile fan belt," she said her husband and sister were in their beds by the masked men before she was flogged.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 13. (AP)—"Calamity Jane," Bobby Jones' famous putter was a magic wand on the greens of St. Andrews today, enabling the American hold-in-front of the British title to leap out in front of a big field in an amazing 68, to start defense of his open championship. 18 holes will be played tomorrow with a final 35 to decide the issue Friday. All of the players in today's competition, however, will not have a part in the play of Friday, for the field will be reduced by elimination of all who are 15 strokes or more behind the leader after tomorrow's round.

Sheriffs Urged to Fight Amendment

LAREDO, July 13. (AP)—John W. Gaires and Will Harris, both of San Antonio, today addressed the Texas Sheriff's association here in opposition to the proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on in August.

In the sheriff's annual convention, were told to fight the amendments "because they would permit the legislature to put sheriffs on salaries and would take away fees under which the sheriffs make the most money."

Albert Hauser, Maverick county sheriff, is slated for president, Jim Stevens, Bexar county, and Joe Condon, Webb county, are mentioned as vice presidents.

AUSTIN, July 13. (AP)—Governor Moody's speaking campaign for the constitutional amendments to be voted on by the people August 1, will begin Friday at Liberty, it was indicated today at the executive offices. No definite itinerary has been announced yet.

'JAIL SENTENCE PLEASANT BUT ARDUOUS,' M'COY

Hundreds of Persons Have Visited Paris Chiropractor in Jail and Tributes Numerous

The fifteen day jail sentence now being served here by Dr. M. B. McCoy, Paris chiropractor, while it has been made pleasant by numerous visits by several hundred friends, gifts of various sorts and also presentation of flowers, has been perhaps the most arduous two weeks he has spent in several years, Dr. McCoy said Wednesday. The confinement itself has not been trying, he explained, but the appreciated attentiveness of hundreds of Lamar county citizens, the writing of acknowledgements for the tokens of esteem and confidence and all the other unusual features in connection with his incarceration have kept him occupied day and night.

"It has been pleasant as it has been taxing, though," Dr. McCoy said to a representative of the Paris News who was in his cell for a short while Friday. During this brief period several persons brought messages from friends and the chiropractor was called to the phone once. The cell was still filled with fresh supplies of flowers through the fifteen days and Friday.

Dr. McCoy declared he had not

Dr. M. B. McCoy Has Pleasant Jail Sentence

Though Dr. M. B. McCoy, Paris chiropractor serving a 15 day jail sentence for violation of the state medical practice act, is almost through "springtime" his cell is still filled with flowers sent by sympathetic friends. A radio, a profusion of magazines and a typewriter are seen in the cell. The cell door remains open most of the time and Dr. McCoy is allowed freedom of the runway on the top floor of the jail.

realized just how appreciative his friends were until the jail term began, and he expressed sincere appreciation for their various and numerous tributes.

The reporter, in obtaining a pass from the sheriff's office was told that they had written more passes for admittance to his cell than passes for any other prisoner who ever served a sentence in the Lamar county jail. One of the deputies was laughingly remarked that it would relieve the office of a considerable amount of routine work in issuing passes when Dr. McCoy was released.

"The sheriff and jailer have allowed me many privileges, friends and well wishers have expressed their sympathy through the gift of many flowers, good things to eat and reading matter," Dr. McCoy said. "A Radiola was put in for my entertainment, and numerous friends have called, all of which has contributed to making my stay in jail as pleasant as possible."

"These facts have cheered me and I am very grateful to the donors, and while this show of esteem and sympathy does more firmly my resolve to do my best to merit it, I know that this is not a personal tribute for people I have never met have sent gifts to me, but it is an expression from the people protesting against this unfair treatment of the chiropractors and against any curtailment in the exercise of their right of choice."

Asked what he thought the final outcome of the chiropractic situation in Texas would be, he answered: "I do not know, of course, how long it will take for us to win our rights, but the tax payers will pretty soon begin to demand of their senators and representatives that they pass a law creating a Board of Chiropractic Examiners in Texas, similar to laws now in force in thirty other states. When it comes to this point and the lawmakers feel their responsibility to the public in the matter and cease being influenced by a highly organized lobby at Austin, we will get a law. It is possible that the question will have to be settled by vote of the people, as was done in the states of California and Oklahoma."

He continued to say that, "Personally, I believe that every good thing was evolved in the mind of men through a Higher power, and that good things will eventually triumph over all forces that seek its destruction for selfish reasons. Everything known to the human race came first into the consciousness of some individual entirely without his volition. If he believed it good and he perceived his duty as custodian of the new truth, he spread the news. The discoverer may have, as history reminds us, suffered his life out against the wall of ignorance, prejudice and intolerance, but his life was only an incident to the march of progress for truth eventually always prevails. The good accomplished through Chiropractic during the past thirty years has fully demonstrated that it is founded on truth."

Commenting on the denial of petition for his pardon by Governor Dan Moody, Dr. McCoy remarked that, while he had hardly expected clemency in the case, he could see no reason why he should not be entitled to pardon as much as murderers and burglars.

Hugo Campaigns for Natural Gas

HUGO, Okla., July 13. — Preliminary work of Hugo's campaign to obtain enough signers to insure a supply of natural gas in time for use during the coming winter is well under way now.

Accepting a proposition made by the Lone Star Gas Company of Dallas, Texas, Hugo residents have organized on a military plan to secure the required number of signatures and deposits. A. A. McDonald is head of an executive committee under which volunteer soldiers are working.

First results of a canvass of the business and residence section were declared good. The climax of the campaign will come July 14, when all sections of the town will be covered and residents asked to put up the deposit asked by the gas company.

NEGRO STABBED AND ANOTHER ARRESTED

Lewis was said to have attacked Sanders, slashing his throat and stabbing him in the breast just over the heart with a pocket knife.

PARISIAN HORSE CABS READY FOR MUSEUMS

PARIS. — The old horse-drawn cabs of Paris are getting ready for the museum.

There are fifty-one of them left. Both drivers and horses show age and wear. In 1900, the year of the big exposition, there were 12,529 of them. Those left are one-horse couples with room for three thin people on the seat and a narrow folding seat facing it. Once in a long while some very white-headed gentleman of the aristocratic looking old lady or old, old school ventures out in an obsolete carriage, but traffic jams and smiles tend to make their appearance constantly rarer.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Because of the use of cigarettes by women a "landslide in physical, mental and moral degeneracy" is feared by Dr. D. H. AMUSEMENTS

At the Cozy Today
A tale of one brother's devotion for another and the love of a wonderful woman is the keynote of the Universal-Blue Streak Western, "Lazy Lightning," which will be the attraction at the Cozy theatre today only.

The star is Art Acord, most noted of Western stars, who, in this vehicle, appears to splendid advantage. Not only does he excel himself in a bewildering exhibition of trick riding and roping, but his portrayal is shaded with fine touches of romance and humor.

"Lazy Lightning" is an original screen story by Harrison Jacobs, noted for his Western tales. It was written especially for Acord's inimitable talents and is different from the average photoplay in which the star is fitted instead of the story being planned for the star.

Last Day at the Plaza
James Hall, one of the Paramount junior stars featured in "Rolled Stockings" at the Plaza today has had an eventful life. Jimmie as he is known out at the studios, hails from the Lone Star state. Running away from his Dallas home at the age of fourteen, Hall joined the "Everywoman" company. However, he soon returned to the family hearthstone and stayed there for three whole weeks, at which time he gained a part in "Kismet."

Hall next won a place in "Chin Chin." When fifteen, he joined the Ziegfeld Follies. War was declared, so Jimmie added a few years to his age and joined the First Texas Field Artillery. After being discharged from the army, came a job in vaudeville and a Shubert contract. In addition to "Passing Show" Hall also played the male lead in the Madge Kennedy—W. C. Fields show "Poppy." Early in 1926, Jess H. Lasky invited him to have a screen test made. Two days later he had a long term contract and was on his way to Hollywood.

Coming to the Plaza
Specters of the past will be awakened when the epic story "Three Bad Men," which John Ford and 15,000 players recently finished picturizing for Fox Film Corporation, comes to the Plaza theatre on Friday and Saturday. Infamous historical rascals and cattle thieves will be seen plying their infamous just as the notorious rascals of fifty years ago plied theirs in the early 70's.

At the Grand Next Week
"Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), which comes to the Grand theatre starting next Monday for three day run, was produced by Rex Ingram in Europe for Metro-Goldwyn. Blasco Ibanez is the author of the powerful sea story of the time of the great world war. Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno have the leading parts.

MAXWELL HOUSE TEA

The accepted salad etiquette

Today's salad is served like this. A silver tray is placed before the hostess, with two cruets—Venetian glass or crystal or colored Bohemian are all in vogue right now—and a silver ewer or bowl and all the little pepper pots and shakers one wishes.

She then makes the dressing—French, of course—in the silver ewer. Measures and stirs and pours it, freshly blended, onto the salad.

Fashionable folk consider it much smarter to dress the salad in this way at the table. And, too, a freshly blended French Dressing has a "life" to it, a piquancy that cannot be denied.

Three parts of Wesson Oil to one of vinegar or lemon juice gives a bland, mild dressing. Two parts of vinegar gives a tart dressing. It depends somewhat on the strength of your particular lemon or vinegar. Plenty of salt...pepper...paprika too, if you like color.

It is delightful to surprise your guests by adding little touches of strange condiments. For meat salads you might like to add a bit of chutney or mustard. If you are serving a fish salad try a little ketchup—or if you choose, some Worcestershire Sauce.

But you must have a choice salad oil. Wesson Oil is very delicate in flavor and it is so good to eat that it makes a delicious French Dressing.

LEGAL MINDS ON PARADE

SMART lawyers in this country have become the great friends and boon companions to all people and corporations whose actions have come under suspicion.

In primitive countries, the laws are few. Being few, they are simple; being simple, they are usually good.

As civilization advances, laws become more complex. Technicalities and precedents are established and grow like cancers to kill the spirit of laws as they were originally intended.

In the first hundred years of this country's history, the laws could be understood, practiced,
and administered by any person of average intelligence. Now, however, there is needed one of these peculiar "legal minds" to understand and unravel the tangled snarl of legal playfulness.
Cases in which the issues seem clearly defined by common sense are quibbled over in court by lawyers whose pettishness resembles nothing so much as the finicky bickerings of cranky old maids.

All this is a preface to comment on Justice William Hitz's sane finding that Albert Fall and the two Dohenys must stand trial on bribery charges in connection with the famous $100,000
brown satchel naval reserve oil scandal of 1921.

Over a month ago, a Doheny lawyer appeared before Justice Hitz with a brief seeking to have the bribery indictments quashed. The lawyer's argument simplified was this:

1. President Harding had no power to transfer jurisdiction of naval oil reserve to the secretary of the interior.

2. Since Harding's order was invalid, Fall had no authority to lease the reserve.

3. If Fall had no authority to lease the reserve, he could not be bribed into doing it.

4. If he couldn't be bribed into doing it,
the charge of bribery should be dismissed.

Any collection of average high school freshmen, presented with this classic bit of legal "reasoning" would laugh; but our curiously, comically serious lawyers must argue the thing forever and a day.

Justice Hitz, after five weeks' deliberation—
a reasonable time for him to look up precedents—
handed down the opinion that Fall and the Dohenys evidently acted on the presumption that the order was valid and that a crime could therefore be charged.

The whole thing would be funny if it were not so deadly serious. Judges and barristers of real ability recognize that legal procedure is almost hopelessly involved in settling just such points at law as this, and they are pleading incessantly for simplification of codes and precedents.

These balanced jurists pride themselves that their briefs and decisions are prepared in simple English and not in the ridiculous dialect of legal pomposity which masquerades as legal learning.

When the whole profession becomes of this mind, the lawyers of the land will no longer cut the comic figure they do now in the eyes of rational individuals, whose dream of Utopia is a world filled with people of horse sense.

WASHING GRAVESTONE WORDS

NOT long ago a famous foreign singer is said to have composed his own epitaph, which was
to read as follows:

"Here is the grave of Blank. He lived, he loved and did scandalous things. He lied and committed sins unspeakable. He was like the devil who danced in church before mass. At last he has found repose. Now immobile, he lies under this stone, his tomb watered only by the tears of his wife and children. Eternal peace to your remains —actor, singer, artist and man who sold himself to all. Peace."

The man is far too wordy, too rhetorical, too vain of himself. The whole tale of most humans could be told in two sentences:

"Here lies Blank. He lived, he sinned, he loved, he died."

STEALING ADAM'S STUFF

THE British boys' club leader who announced
the other day that his modern boys were all too often corrupted and edged on to such high crimes as petting and cigarette smoking by the modern girls may have issued a social diagnosis
of greater import than he reckoned.

Only yesterday, it seems, girls were being cautioned by anxious mamas on what they should do to keep amorously inclined young men in their proper places. This, says the British protector of good boys' morals, is now changed, and youths must be instructed how to deal with the modern girl. The agitation for a single standard of morals has resulted not in bringing men up to the elevated moral plane once occupied by saintly womanhood, but in bringing womanhood down to,
or below, the plane occupied by men, says the boys' protector.

Whether or not there is truth in these utterances, no mere male in America would dare say in the presence of his women folks, for fear of having his hair pulled. The charges have, however, a familiar ring, and smack somewhat of passing the buck. Wasn't it Adam who declared that Eve was responsible for the fall of man?

WHAT OTHERS SAY

RIGHT TO RESTRICT TRUCK LOADS
UPHELD

From the Arizona Highways:

THE right of a state to limit truck loads upon the highways was upheld in a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, in a case brought against the Oregon Highway Commission
by certain trucking companies, attacking the validity of an order reducing truck load limits on the Columbia highway from 22,000 to 16,500 pounds.

The court declared that the mere fact that a truck company can not make a profit unless it can use a truck with a load weighing 22,000 pounds
does not show that the regulation forbidding it is either discriminatory or unreasonable. "That it prevents competition with freight traffic on parallel steam railroads may possibly be a circumstance to be considered, though that is doubtful,
but it is necessarily outweighed when it appears by decision of competent authority that such weight is injurious to the highway for the use of the general public and unduly increases the cost of maintenance and repair," the court said.

Authority to make limitations must rest with the State Highway authorities, the court held, not only because of the general constitutional distinction between the national and state powers, but also for the reason that contract existing between the federal government and a state which has accepted federal highway aid, imposes upon the state the burden of maintenance after construction. Regulation as to the method of use of the road must remain with the state and "can not be interfered with unless it is shown to be so arbitrary and unreasonable as to defeat the useful purposes for which congress has made its large contributions to bettering the highway systems of the Union."

NOTHING GAINED BY ASSASSINATION

From the Texarkana Gazette:

ASSASSIN has brought an end to the life of Kevin O'Higgins, but they have not lessened
the stability of the Irish Free State government,
of which the slain statesman was a dominant figure.

Seldom does political assassination advance
the cause espoused by those who resort to violence
to gain the ends they are unable to attain through peaceful means.

Probably, however, the killing of O'Higgins was more a matter of vengeance than a move to advance the cause of the republicans and the De-Valera party. But O'Higgins was not revengeful.
"I am dying at peace with my enemies. I forgive them all," he said. "I die for my country. I go to join Michael Collins."

O'Higgins' fate was similar to that of his father, who was shot to death by raiders in his own home in 1923.

The Irish republicans had no reason to love O'Higgins, who has been designated as both the late Highway authorities, the court held, not hated man in Ireland. He adopted strong measures to prevent the republicans from smashing the Free State by force of arms. Many observers of Irish politics hold the opinion that had it not been for the strength of O'Higgins the Free State could not have survived the civil war of 1922.

There appears to be small chance that the Irish republicans can gain by assassination what they have failed to gain by ordinary political methods and open rebellion.

Efficiency In Your Kitchen

By Olive Roberts Barton

I HAVE kept house for many years yet it took a man to tell me how to do it right.

He happened to be interested in one of the largest restaurants in the country, or rather a chain of restaurants, for there is one or more of them in every large city.

I had always had an idea that such places were run for profit. Why do we get it into our heads, by the way, that everything is done merely for the money that is in it? Of course there is a profit—no business is run for charity. But besides that I was amazed to learn that the chief concern of this restaurant company was for the health of the people who ate at their tables.

They have specialists who make chemical tests of all supplies to ascertain their purity. But the thing that amazed me was this: Absolutely no cooked food is allowed to lie over until the next day. Also, absolutely no cooked food is allowed to be left over. Leftovers mean waste and waste means loss.

Their calculations are of course down to a perfect system. They know how much to buy—they gauge their crowds by season and weather and other things. They buy enough but not too much.

There must be a reason. There is! Cooked vegetables change chemically overnight—also meats and other foods change, too. They may taste all right, but they are not all right say these food experts. Fermentation has begun.

Why can't housewives run their homes on the same basis? Buy only the amount needed, cook such quantities as will be entirely consumed and have an empty refrigerator over night. Do away with "warmed over lunches, because there will be nothing to warm over. Besides, warmed over food is never as good as fresh food.

OUT OUR WAY

WASHINGTON
LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, July 12.—You may have read in the newspapers that workmen engaged in repairing the temporary White House were selling nails from the torn-out sections to the souvenir hunters.

Well, President Coolidge heard it, too, and there hasn't been a nail sold since.

Prior to this profitable enterprise of the workmen, all good citizens of the United States and their wives and children were allowed to enter the White House grounds
and, at some distance, to gaze respectfully upon the operation of putting a new roof on the White House and otherwise improving its safety and comfort.

But President Coolidge picked up the morning paper and read about the nail selling and his method of stopping this commerce
was to bar all ordinary citizens from the grounds, although he himself was then still living at the temporary White House on Dupont Circle.

The sequence of cause and effect has just come to light. It appears that only a handful of nails was sold, but now the workmen are deprived of the opportunity to make a few quarters and first-time visitors to Washington are denied a closeup of the White House and its alteration.

Small Grains Give
Bigger Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Farmers of the United States and Canada have greatly increased their yields of wheat, oats and other grains by the introduction of new varieties of small grains.

Wheat especially has been produced in greater proportions due to the spread of hardy grains developed at Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, and other experiment stations.

It is estimated that in Canada alone the farmers are producing an average of $9,000,000 bushels
more wheat annually as a result of introducing the variety of Marquis wheat, than if they were still growing the old standard variety
Red Eye.

Marquis was produced by artificial hybridization and distributed to farmers about 20 years ago.
This variety also occupies some ten million acres in the spring wheat belt of the United States.

Blackball and Kanred are new varieties of winter wheat which occupy some 3,000,000 acres in the winter wheat belt of the United States. In more than 100 tests throughout Kansas these varieties have yielded on an average two to three bushels more than the average of the ordinary varieties grown.

In oats, too, a considerable increase in yield has been produced by breeding. A large percentage of the total oat acreage of Iowa is seeded to new varieties developed at the Iowa Agricultural experiment station.

Besides increasing the yields of such small plants, plant breeders have succeeded in producing new varieties resistant to certain diseases, particularly rust and smut.

Second Crop Best

Seven years of tests by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, show that the production of red clover seed is highest when the first crop, and not the second is used for seed. It has been the custom of farmers to use the first or spring crop for hay, and the second crop for seed.

Gains In Life Span Come At Both Ends

Recently I had an interesting letter from a man living in Arkansas, calling attention to a statement I made regarding the duration of life. He referred to one of my articles in which it was stated that the average age in Washington's time was about thirty years
while now it is fifty-six.

It must be admitted that many current statements about the duration of life are somewhat misleading. When we speak about the "expectation of life" we are referring to the average chance of a baby born today compared with the baby born in a different period of the world's history. As a matter of fact the improvement in the work of the navy, but an effective
"ownership on any thing the navy doesn't want the public to see is provided for in the order. This censorship is especially imposed
when photographers seek pictures
of wrecks of navy airplanes—
which have been so frequent as to deserve the name of "naval aviation and see the next world!" It is explaining that it isn't a good thing to have the public see pictures of such wrecks.

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D.
Wilbur is an advocate of some forms of censorship.

My correspondent has given me certain figures. I have not corroborated them, but I assume they are correct. He says that the combined ages of the first seven Presidents was 569 years, while the combined ages of the last seven Presidents who died natural deaths, amount to 452 years. This means that the first seven Presidents averaged almost seventeen years
per man more than the last seven.

He refers to the signing of the Declaration of Independence and to the early United States Senators who lived just as long as Senators do today.

All these suggestions are well founded. But it is unfair to judge the race by taking samples from the comfortable economic class. The men who were conspicuous in the early history of this country were largely from well-to-do homes.
"Immigrant" men from what may be called the "leisure" class. Their surroundings were conducive to long life.

The fact is, however, that the average men of Washington's time,
and particularly the average women of that period, were accounted old at forty or fifty. While they lived simpler lives there was not attention to the early stages of disease which has so much to do with the prospect of continued life
and physical usefulness.

ACHIEVEMENTS

Ample Recreation Facilities
Are Necessary in Every City
BY DON E. MOWRY

Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association

Any city that does not look out for the recreational activities of its people cannot expect to grow nor develop civic pride.

St. Petersburg, Fla., recognized
this and floated a $1,000,000 bond issue to build a new recreation pier.

Not every city is situated on the ocean as is St. Petersburg, of course, but most cities have rivers, neighborhood lakes, and beautiful bits of woodland which can be made available for a maximum of public enjoyment.

St. Petersburg's new pier is a massive structure of stone and concrete, has a double auto drive in the center with walks for pedestrians on either side. Small balconies give the fishermen exclusive places to cast their lines and land their catch.

At the pier head are two great halls with entrances through fifty arcades which encircle the four sides. The upper hall has a seating capacity of 10,000 while the lower hall is fitted with tables, chairs and seats which face the bay. At the tables lunches are served from the inner restaurant. A promenade surrounds the entire head.

A Boy's Protest

Life is our most valued possession and health comes next in order. I had life, but wasn't enjoying health, and therein lies my story.

From the time I was seven years
of age I suffered with attacks of pain in my right side that the doctors said was appendicitis. As a consequence I could not eat much
and was thin and weak.

During the years I was afflicted
this way many different kinds of medicine was given me and my parents were told that an operation
was my only chance to get well
and strong.

When I was twelve years of age
a kind friend told my father about how Dr. McCoy, Chiropractor, had recently (that was in 1922) cured
his daughter of a severe case of appendicitis, and he finally persuaded my father to take me to this doctor. My parents were very skeptical about chiropractic helping me, but by the time Dr. McCoy had given me twenty-five adjustments their faith began to develop and it is pretty well rooted now because I am now seventeen and have never had any trouble with my side. Since I got well two more members of our family have taken adjustments with pleasing results.

It looks queer to me that anyone would be fighting the chiropractor when he is doing so much good, and I haven't heard of anyone who has taken his adjustments that is.

Let the chiropractor live is my motto.

Dorcy J. Mackey,

Electric Culture
Tested 20 Years
Shows Little Hope

WASHINGTON, July 13.—After twenty years of experimenting, the United States Department of Agriculture is still trying to discover what effect, if any, use of electric methods has on the development of plants.

Tests are still going on at the experimental farm of the department under the direction of L. H. Flint of the bureau of plant industry. But Flint reports nothing conclusive has as yet resulted from foregoing experiments.

As far back as 1907 the department started flinging up wires to test the effect of electric currents on plants. Most of these experiments in "electroculture" sought to find some relationship between increased growth and the passage of an electric current through air and plants from an overhead system of wire discharging at high voltage.

These tests went on to 1917, when the war and negative results stopped them. Then in 1923 the British ministry of agriculture reported an appreciable difference between plants grown under electroculture and those grown naturally. So Flint again took up these experiments, using a revolving table with several plants under a system of electric wires.

Although experimental differences have been obtained in a number of experiments, Flint reports, "the variability of the controls has yet prevented any satisfactory association of these differences with the current."

It seems clear that at present no practical method of electrical stimulation has been developed.

Chapter 28

Prentiss glanced at Vilak in fright a moment, then suddenly turned and darted out of the room. They heard him mount a flight of stairs, then dart down again.

Vilak, despite the other's absence, swiftly began making a survey of the empty chamber, from whose flimsy walls great sections of plaster and brick had fallen in such quantities that in many places the moonlight showed brightly.

"This room won't do," he muttered. "High-powered bullets would pierce it in a hundred places. Let's look over the house."

He flicked on his flashlight. With Elise and the old man close behind him, he stepped carefully past the raging dog, then swept through room after room of the melancholy structure, disturbing here a few ghastly bats, there an ugly brown-spotted toad. He found nothing which suited his purpose, however until they had reached a room at the rear. Here a window looked out upon the low stone water tower, three or four hundred feet from the house.

"That tower's just the place," he flashed. "Excellent position. Has a view on all sides and is almost certainly bullet-proof."

They hurried out, crossed the low gully which lay between the tower and the house and strode through the door forming its entrance. A quick examination proved it to be in better state of preservation than the residence, though even here two or three of the red volcanic stones of which it was constructed had fallen and lay on the ground. It had evidently been used as a storeroom, for it was filled with broken boxes, almost obliterated by cobwebs, and a few rotten pieces of cast-off furniture.

One section, however, separated by a small wooden partition, showed signs of recent use, for here the debris had been cleared away; smoked meats and other kitchen supplies had been brought in and hung from long hooks or were placed on shelves along the wall. Vilak shrouded a candle and put it in the corner so that it would give them a faint light without being broken. Then he smashed an old iron stove with an ax, and taking the separated plates set about sealing up the tower's two small windows. Prentiss hurried in to join them, and shakily aided Vilak in preparing a barricade.

The three men and the girl dragged some heavy boxes forward, and with them blocked the narrow doorway. The dirty floor of the room was wet and slippery, making the work more difficult.

Vilak glanced down to ascertain the reason for the dampness and saw in a shadowy corner a tiny thread of water coursing up from the soil. "Spring from those little lakes on the high ground back of your house?" he demanded of Prentiss.

The other nodded sullenly. Vilak began making loopholes in the window barricades. "Wet feet won't hurt us. Get rifles, if you've got them."

Prentiss disappeared into the house again, returning with half a dozen new rifles and a box of ammunition. Two of these Vilak put by each window. "I think we're ready for them now," he said. "As ready as we can be."

He began distributing the cartridges. He looked at Elise gravely as he watched her slip a clip of bullets into the chamber of her rifle. "I reproach myself bitterly for having let you come along. Bitterly. Both you and Nanny. But you're here. And what's done is done."

He took another bit of betel, then peered out through one of the window apertures. "Moon's quite bright and I can see plainly, but no sign of attack yet. All of you had better have some cigarettes."

He offered the cigarettes to Elise. She smiled and refused. "Too powerful for me now. Won't be able to shoot straight if I do. I'll take one of Mr. Nunnally's mild ones."

She touched his hand. "Don't worry about my being here, or your having brought me here. You didn't I brought myself. Forget about me. You've far too much to think of anyway."

"All right, that's ended."

He showed the old man a second time how to operate the rifle. "Think you can do it, Nanny?"

The old man took off his glasses, wiped them nervously, then once more pressed his tiny thumb against the magazine spring. "I must do it. I must."

Prentiss kept his eyes fixed out the other window, his face one instant sullen, the next trembling.

Vilak took a position beside him. He rubbed a drop of grease from the sight of his rifle. "Be sparing of the ammunition. It's the only thing we have. We'll have to make it last a long time."

"A signal," Vilak murmured. "Probably give us a straight front attack." He went on as Elise hastened to join the old man at the window. "At the gate. It's our weakest spot. Keep a sharp lookout."

The dog who had been left in the house began to bay again. Suddenly Prentiss jerked his rifle to his shoulder. "Shadows. Shadows. At the gate," he whispered hoarsely.

"You're right," Vilak swung his rifle into position. "We'll give them a volley. Better let me handle it. Prentiss," he added quietly, when the other, quivering as though from a violent chill, feverishly touched his gun, took wild aim and was about to shoot. "Don't fire till I say so."

A few seconds later came his placid soothing voice, once more. "Steady, steady. Good aim. Fire."

The reports of four rifles were almost simultaneous. An outcry followed. The shadows disappeared. "Two on the casualty list, I think," Vilak said.

There was a brief interval of inaction. Then the call of the night-bird sounded again, and again vague shadows appeared at the lofty barred entrance. A second volley blazed from the defenders' rifles. Again there was a cry of pain, again the shadows vanished.

"At least one more that time," Vilak grunted. "Learn pretty soon they can't do that. Seem to be intent on forcing the gate. May be afraid of the barbed wire on top of the wall as high voltage, but I doubt it."

A third time the attackers tried to reach the gate, a third time they were routed and sprang back into the brush. A brooding silence fell over the fazenda. With her penknife Elise dug out a shell which had stuck in the magazine of her rifle; the old man wiped the powder and perspiration from his face with his minute handkerchief. Prentiss kept his glassy eye fixed to the loophole before him, his lips constantly moving though they emitted no sound; Vilak viciously chewed betel nut.

Suddenly heavy firing began in the high branches of the trees along the creek, many feet overtopping the wall. A fusillade of bullets rattled against the house. "Steady, steady," Vilak counseled. "Take your time. Fire at the bursts."

The fusillade continued. Here and there the put-putting of a rifle would abruptly cease, mute testimony that a shot of the defenders had found its target. But neither were the bullets of the attackers without effect, as the firing went on plowing often and oftener through a joint in the inadequate barricade.

The firing ceased for a few moments, then burst out again with increased vigor. The old man gave a low exclamation and dropped his gun.

The Best of the Now

That man with the watch chain—is he wearing the best watch chain for his needs? That girl with the clever bit of rouge laid over a finishing cream on her cheeks—has she selected the finest finishing cream for her delicate skin? That woman with the new leather oxfords—does she find them wonderfully tireless as well as enviably smart? Each is going home to dinner. Each will enact a little ritual of soap, towels, table linen, silver, glassware, candles or electric light—bread from the baker's, butter chilled in a refrigerator. . . . Advertised goods—things that have reached them somehow.

Yet the degree of pleasure each gets out of soap, towels, table linen, glassware, candles—depends upon how recently advertisements have been put to use. Is it the choicest soap? Is it linen with a lustre? Is it nickless and beautiful glassware? Is it most deliciously prepared food? Advertisements tell only the Now news, and the best of the now. You have to know today's advertisements in order to enjoy the now. You may be doing daily rituals with yesterday's habits—not making quite the most of yourself, your comfort, your home.

Read the advertisements regularly so as to profit by their news. They help you enjoy the best of the now NOW.

DEMPSEY HAS KNOCKOUT EDGE ON OPPONENT

If Knockout Is To Decide Dempsey-Sharkey Fight, Jack Most Likely to Do It

BY F. G. VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 13.—If the battle between Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey July 21 is to have an early knockout ending, the records point to Dempsey as the man more likely to produce it.

Coming out of his corner with the double-barreled "kayo" cocked and ready, the Dempsey of old floored 25 of his opponents with first-round knockouts in the course of his brilliant career. That savage offense at the start may be his best defense against Sharkey, who has the advantage of youth's superior stamina in a long-drawn battle.

To add the ex-gob to his first-round "kayo" list, Dempsey must have back to 1919. Not since that great year in which he won the title has he finished a foe in the first frame.

Sharkey's shorter record shows but one first-round knockout scored over Billy Muldoon in 1924.

Both have been knocked out. Once in each career the mighty has fallen. Dempsey's conqueror was Fireman Jim Flynn who downed him for the point in one round in 1917. Sharkey's was Homer Riles who knocked the sailor helpless in the night in 1924.

Analysis of the evolution of Sharkey's punch shows a startling increase in its power in the years that have dampened the dynamite in Dempsey's fists.

From a "lighter" without a punch, Sharkey became this year a dangerous hitter, who slashed Mike McTigue so severely the referee stopped the bout, and who knocked out Jim Maloney in the fifth round. These were his last two fights. In them Sharkey seemed to find and use, almost for the first time, the devastating power of his punch. While Sharkey's victory over Wills last fall was won on a foul, the Lithuanian had all the better of it and that battle served to rank him among the logical contenders for the title.

Outstanding among Dempsey's great fights is his three-round knockout of Jess Willard in Toledo in 1919 for the championship. In its defense he knocked out Billy Miske in three rounds, Bill Brennan in 12, Georges Carpentier in four, Luis Firpo in two and won from Tom Gibbons in 15, before Gene Tunney out-fought him to win the crown in ten rounds at Philadelphia.

Dempsey at 32 is a veteran of 78 fights in which he took 47 by knockouts, won 11, drew 4 and lost two. Two were exhibitions and three no-decisions.

Sharkey at 25 has to his credit 19 knockouts and 17 victories in 33 fights. He lost four and two were no-decisions.

Jimmy Battle still continues to shine down at Little Rock both in the field and at the bat. That

SPORT NOTES

BY HARRY COX
McConnell and Harding are two new faces of the Snapper roster. McConnell is a catcher and is known here and over the circuit, having been a member of the Greenville club at one time. He was with the Fort Worth Panthers this spring. Harding is an outfielder and comes from Rockford in the Three Eye league. It is understood, McConnell takes the place of the disabled Homer Burch, while Harding is subbing for Bob Sanguinet, who is out with injuries.

The Senior Teen Gallegos is having a great season down in far-away Florida. The Senior is with the Jacksonville club, which outfit is heading the procession and has been all season. Gallegos has apparently found a new lease on life in the land of Ponce de Leon.

Bennie Adams, a son of Rick Adams, who is playing with S. B. A. club is doing some startling hitting this summer. The youngster has been getting two and three hits a game and last Sunday got five hits in as many times at bat. Many of the kid's blows are for extra bases, including several home runs.

Bennie comes by his "natural," as his dad was one of the best ball players who ever drew on a spiked shoe.

Dick Kerr seems to have justified Manager Dell Pratt's judgment. It was whispered around the Texas league that the Wee One was through, but Pratt didn't think so. Kerr won his first game for Waco Tuesday when he beat Beaumont. Pratt was with Detroit when Kerr was with the Chicago White Sox. Perhaps not as good as he once was, Kerr can beat a lot of ball clubs on knowledge alone.

The volley ball games are attracting a lot of attention just now, and good crowds are watching the daily contests. Volley ball is something new to Paris sport lovers, but they are rapidly catching on to the finer points of the game. The Miller Manufacturing Co., leading the volley ball league to date with a percentage of 100%.

There is no percentage kept in the fishermen's league, mainly because the boys generally lose the biggest ones. The bass are striking good right now and some nice strings are being caught at both the old and new city lake. There is a great thrill in bass fishing—nothing to excel it.

The pennant race in the Lone Star loop is one of the closest in class D history. With the possible exception of Tyler every club stands most excellent chance of copping the honors in the second half. Two or three straight losses by the leaders and a corresponding number of wins by at least four clubs would put them on top.

And Uncle Jake has not uttered a prophecy in some days. Probably busy watching the Marines, Steers or what-nots lose ball games. Dallas and Fort Worth are having a terrible time, and are keeping the sport scribes in the two cities busy thinking up alibis.

Jimmy Battle still continues to shine down at Little Rock both in the field and at the bat. That

Spanish Heavyweight Stops Big Negro in Fourth Round of Brooklyn Bout

BROOKLYN, July 13. (AP)—Dis-

playing unexpected punching power, Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, knocked out Harry Wills tonight in the fourth round of a 15-round match, putting an end to the veteran negro's attempted comeback.

Three rounds of cumbersome mauling came to a dramatic climax when the Spaniard suddenly lashed out with a right hand blow to the jaw that toppled Wills as if he had been hit with an axe. Staggering up from a count of nine, Wills went down for the second and last time from another battery of right-handers to the head.

It was the first time Wills had taken the full count of ten since 1911. He was stopped 12 years ago by Sam Langford. To the assembled experts, it seemed to mark a definite ending of the 17 years ring career of the negro whose decline

THIS rich full-flavored old Burley is a particularly cool-smoking tobacco to begin with... Wellman's Method makes it cooler—but the "rough cut" supplies the finishing touch.

For remember, this is PIPE tobacco, hence it is cut in the one way pipe tobacco should be cut—in large, coarse, shaggy flakes that burn slower, smoke cooler, and last nearly twice as long. Smokers tell us it's the coolest cut of all!
